For many people, the perfect job would come from their hobbies, but in fact, not many have the luck. However, digital cartoonist (数字漫画家) Lian Zongbo still decided to change his hobby into his career, anyway.

When Lian was young, he always daydreamed of becoming a cartoonist one day. Then he fell in love with basketball later, and would learn Kobe Bryant's movies all day long. In early 2016, he had the idea of combining his interests. Lian started drawing pictures about NBA and shared them on social media platforms like Sina Weibo, but at first few people showed interest in it.

However, things changed in January 2017, after Lian kept on his job for a year. He was invited to put his work at art shows in the US. After the show, his name gradually became popular in the global basketball community. Today, he has over 210,000 followers on social media platforms, and makes cartoons for sports teams, brands and media.

So what makes Lian succeed? Lian said it was because he kept going even when life was hard. He is glad that his childhood hobby has now turned into a career. In a word, his success does not come from his luck, but his hard work and his holding on to the dream.

31. What are Lian's hobbies when he was young?

- A. Drawing cartoons and playing basketball.
B. Making digital art and playing video games.

- C. Watching cartoons and sharing pictures on Weibo.
- D. Drawing building designs and playing basketball.

32. What happened when Lian started to share cartoons online in 2016?

- A. Few people liked his work.
- B. He became very popular.
- C. He got a job from NBA China.
- D. He was invited to a TV show.

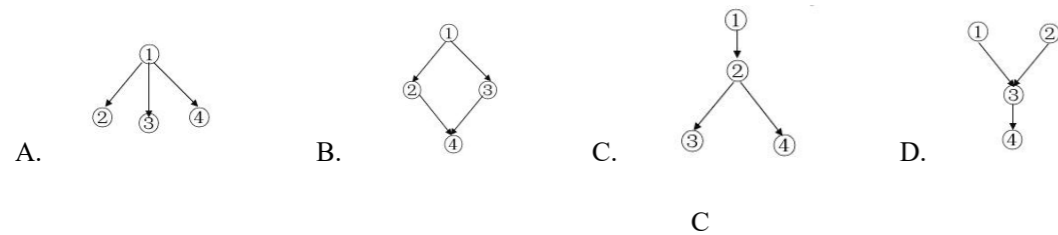

33. What was the turning point of his career?

- A. When he got a job in a cartoon company.
- B. When he started teaching basketball.
- C. When he shared pictures on Sina Weibo.
- D. When he was invited to art shows in the US.

34. What can we learn about Lian's success in the last paragraph?

- A. He was very lucky to succeed.
- B. He changed his career several times.
- C. He did not give up during hard time.
- D. He was successful without hard work.

35. What is the structure of the text?

Many people think that cities don't have farms and that people only grow fruit and vegetables in the countryside. However, they are wrong. There are more and more farms in cities all over the world. According to Ms. Sullivan, a person studying urban agriculture (都市农业) in New York City, "There was urban agriculture long long ago."

More and more people live in cities now. And more and more people want to garden in city areas. Ms. Sullivan said, "In small gardens, on the rooftops and indoors, city people grow fruit and vegetables or raise animals to produce vegetables, eggs, honey, and meat."

However, they still need to live on food grown in the countryside. This is because a city doesn't have enough places to grow enough food for everyone.

In New York City, there aren't a lot of places for growing food, but city farmers use many different ways to grow things. For example, Brooklyn Grange has three rooftop vegetable farms in New York City.

Brooklyn Grange grows tomatoes, potatoes and many other things. It sells its vegetables to people and restaurants in its city. People use the place that is not needed for anything else. As more urban farmers find ways to grow food in cities, people in the city will be able to get fresher vegetables for their meals.

36. What can we learn from the first paragraph?

- A. There aren't farms in cities.
- B. Urban agriculture is important.
- C. Many people are studying urban agriculture.
- D. Urban agriculture isn't new to people.

37. Where may people in cities grow food according to the text?

- ① on the roof of their houses
- ② in their gardens
- ③ on the side of the street
- ④ in their houses

- A. ①②④
- B. ①②③
- C. ②③④
- D. ①③④

38. What's the problem of growing food in cities according to the text?

- A. People there are too busy to grow food.
- B. People there are not good at growing food.
- C. The food grown there is hard to live.
- D. There isn't enough room to grow food.

39. Which of the following is NOT true?

- A. People can also grow vegetables in cities.
- B. A lot of people in cities like to garden by themselves.
- C. People in cities don't need food grown in the countryside.
- D. Brooklyn Grange plants different kinds of vegetables.

40. What does the writer mainly tell us in the text?

- A. Food grown in the countryside is better than that in cities.
- B. Urban agriculture becomes more and more popular.
- C. The vegetables people in the city eat are not fresh.
- D. People in the city get enough food from urban agriculture.

四、短文填空 (本题 10 个空, 每空只填一词, 每空 1 分, 共 10 分)

阅读短文, 在空白处填入适当的内容或括号内单词的正确形式。

Have you ever noticed how many calories (卡路里) you eat in a day? There is a 46 (speciality) convenience store opened in the Chengdu Youth Palace. The store is 47 (call) "Know Your Food". Like a common convenience store, the "Know Your Food" Convenience Store is full 48 food and drinks. However, the tags (标签) on the food and drinks don't show their prices — they show visitors 49 the food and drinks are high in fat, sugar and salt. When visiting the store, people can better know what is in the food and drinks they have.

The "Know Your Food" Convenience Store is part of a big plan of the United Nations Children's Fund. The purpose of the program is to make children and young people 50 (knew) more about foods, and help them make healthy 51 (choose) about their diet.

At present, being overweight 52 (have) become a 53 (seriously) problem among children. It is shown 54 nearly 20% of children between 6 and 17 years of age, and over 10% of children under the age of 6 in China are overweight. And the number keeps going up year by year.

So, many Chinese people give the "Know Your Food" Convenience Store a warm welcome. They think the store will help children to choose 55 (healthy) food than that in the other stores.
